

Mobile view: I interpreted the mobile design to mean that as the site width became smaller the “order by position” dropdown moved just below the “main” section (and the main section would now be viewed via an overflow:scroll position) and the background color of the footer or “bottom” area of the site would now be the color white. The main and header background color areas, however, would remain an off-black color.